Teens Face Charges For La Habra Heights Mansion Break In

More than a dozen teens have been charged in connection with breaking into a La Habra Heights mansion last November and throwing a party, which caused more than $1 million in losses and damages, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Twelve males and two females, ranging in age from 15 to 18, were charged in separate cases. All are facing one count of misdemeanor trespassing, while nine are charged with one count of felony burglary. Other charges filed against some of the teens include grand theft, receiving stolen property and petty theft.

Investigators said more than 100 people partied at a vacant 90,000-square-foot mansion in La Habra Heights between Nov. 23 and Nov. 24, 2013. The home was trashed and looted. Among the items stolen were designer clothing, medieval armor and a mounted snow leopard.

All 14 have been cited and are scheduled to appear at an initial hearing tomorrow in Pomona Juvenile Court, Department 281.

Those charged are:

_ 16-year-old boy (dob 7/17/97), charged in case KJ38599 with misdemeanor trespassing, petty theft and charging for admission to a party in a residential area
